COUNTY FARMER HURT SERIOUSLY AS MULE KICKS

George L. Tester is Taken To Berger Hospital After Accident

SKULL FEARED FRACTURED

Deercreek Township Man Stoops to Get Bridle

George L. Tester, 36, was in critical condition, Monday, in Berger hospital, after being kicked in the left temple by a mule Sunday at 7:30 p. m. It is feared his skull is fractured.

The accident happened when Tester stooped to pick up a bridle while he was preparing to bed the mules for the night.

Mr. Tester regained consciousness about two hours after the mishap.

He was taken to Berger hospital in the Hill ambulance, under the care of Dr. G. D. Sheets, Williamsport.

The accident happened on the Arthur-Dunlap farm, near Williamsport, where Tester is a tenant. He was found by his father-in-law, Pearl Bush, about 10 minutes after being kicked.

Mr. Tester married Bush's daughter, Pearl Louise, last week.

362 WORKING ON 13 PROJECTS IN COUNTY MARCH 1

Three hundred and sixty-two persons are employed on the 13 WPA projects in operation. No new projects have been opened in recent weeks. None has been completed.

The projects listed are surplus commodity distribution, adult education, rural sanitation, courthouse redecoration, canal park, Deercreek, Darby and Muhlenberg township roads, sanitary and storm sewers in Circleville, clothing renovation, sewing and book repair.

COLUMBUS MAN FINED $100 FOR DRUNK DRIVING

George Thomas Padgett, 57, Town street, Columbus, arrested Saturday afternoon on Route 23 about two miles north of South Bloomfield for driving when intoxicated, was fined $100 and costs by H. O. Eveland, justice of peace.

He was committed to the county jail.

The arrest was made by a state highway patrolman.

ORR TAKES OVER JOB AS FORD'S SAFETY CHIEF

CHILLICOTHE, March 1—Controversy over the safety director post here appeared ended today with Carl Orr in the official position.

Lou Hibbler, city auditor, supported by an opinion of Solicitor Kenneth T. Stevens, expressed willingness to honor vouchers of Mr. Orr, and Sam L. Segal, deputy director, declared he would accept the decision as final.

"The job doesn't mean anything to me personally, why should I fight a lone fight," Mr. Segal said in announcing his acceptance of the decision.

Mr. Segal was formally discharged last Tuesday by Mayor James E. Ford.

PITTMAN WARNS OF WAR AS BAD AS 1914 TROUBLE

WASHINGTON, March 1—(UP)—The world is preparing for another war such as the conflict of 1914, Sen. Key Pittman, D., Nev., warned today as he urged the senate to pass strict and permanent neutrality legislation.

Pleading the cause of his "cash and carry" neutrality proposal Pittman characterized it as the most effective method of preventing another world war.

"Such a war may come again," he said. "In fact, the world today is preparing for such a war."

Pittman's bill would impose on any nation at war which desired to trade with this country the responsibility for transporting the purchased goods away from American shores and the necessity of paying for the goods in cash.

The measure has gathered strong support despite its apparent conflict in fundamental policy with the reciprocal trade program extended by congress last week and now awaiting President Roosevelt's signature.

JUDGE ADKINS TO HEAR PLEAS MIDDLE OF WEEK

No date for the arraignment of men indicted Friday by the county grand jury had been established Monday morning. Indictment papers were to be served Monday.

It was believed the arraignment would be held either Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday.

No jury cases are scheduled in common pleas court this week.

31 TAGS PUT OUT

Police reported 31 tags were issued Saturday for overtime parking in the downtown district. No fines were announced. Officers said they believed many of the cars parked overtime were owned by rural residents who attended the final session of the county basketball tournament.

M'Laughlin Appointed To Handle Auto Tags

Sale of 1937 auto licenses in Circleville was delayed Monday by failure of the newly-appointed deputy registrar, James A. McLaughlin, to receive his supplies.

A shipment of 4,000 tags in the series X and Y, the same series as received here last year, arrived Saturday but no supplies accompanied them.

Appointment of Mr. McLaughlin as the deputy registrar to succeed George E. Hammel was announced Monday. The appointment was made by Frank West, state registrar of motor vehicles.

Mr. McLaughlin will issue tags at the McLaughlin shop, 114 S. Scioto street. The front of the shop is being remodeled into an office to take care of the work.

Mr. McLaughlin will be assisted by his brother, Wayne. He has appointed Miss Frances Kibler as one of his assistants. Other assistants will be appointed later, Mr. McLaughlin said. Mr. McLaughlin was inducted for the deputy registrar position by the Pickaway county Democratic Executive committee. The registrar receives a 25-cent fee on each set of tags issued. The new registrar has been active in local Democratic circles for the last 45 years.

The new maroon and white licenses must not be displayed before March 10. All vehicles must bear the new plates by April 1.

The sale of drivers' licenses will be handled by Mrs. Myrtle Hammel, deputy registrar. The licenses do not expire until Sept. 30.

The appointment of deputy tag registrars throughout the county has not been announced.

EDITH MAXWELL GOES TO COURT, FIGHTING PRISON

WISE, Va., March 1—(UP)—Edith Maxwell, twice convicted of slaying her father, Trigg Maxwell, appears in Wise county circuit court again today to hear counsel argue a motion to set aside the verdict of second degree murder in her second trial.

Trigg Maxwell died at the family home in Pound, Va., early in the morning of July 22, 1935. Miss Maxwell and her mother, now living on a farm in Chesterfield county near Richmond, were indicted for murder in connection with his death.

At Miss Maxwell's first trial in November 1935 she was convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to 25 years imprisonment. The surprise court of appeals of Virginia last September granted her plea for a new trial.

700 BRIDGEPORT PUPILS SEEKING TO RETAIN ELY

BRIDGEPORT, March 1—(UP)—Approximately 700 Bridgeport high school students went "on strike" today after it had been rumored that Superintendent Howard Ely would not be re-employed by the board of education.

The students marched through the streets, some carrying banners which proclaimed "We want Ely." They visited grade schools and put on a demonstration at each.

Some banners also carried demands for return of Harry B. Waldorf, high school principal.

Paul Miller, board member, said no decision had been reached on employment of a new superintendent. He said there had been no talk of dismissing Waldorf.

When H. C. Gillette was dismissed as superintendent six years ago, students staged a similar demonstration.

THREE CROWS ATTACK, KILL, DEVOUR COYOTE

KEMMERER, Wyo., Mar. 1—(UP)—Three hungry crows attacked, killed and devoured a coyote near here. Ranchmen saw the battle. They said the birds swooped down in formation. Pecking at the coyote's eyes and body until it fell exhausted in the snow. While the coyote lay dying, the crows held their distance. Later they moved in to consume the carcass.

FANSTEEL CORP. AWAITS HEARING FOR INJUNCTION

500 Union Men Mass About Waukegan Factory to Halt 100 Workers

DEBRIS CLEAN UP BEGINS
Firm Asks Court to Rule Against CIO Program

WAUKEGAN, Ill., March 1—(UP)—A grand jury was sworn today to consider indictment of eight of John L. Lewis's steel organizers who master-minded the recent nine-day strike against the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation.

The Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation today took to court its fight against John L. Lewis's Committee for Industrial Organization as mass picketing delayed preparations for reopening strike-battered factory buildings.

The company had planned to send 100 non-union men into the plants at dawn to inspect and repair equipment, replace shattered window panes, and sweep out hundreds of tear gas bombs to drive out 60 sit-down strikers last Friday.

Hearing Scheduled

In the face of an announcement that 500 members of the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and sympathizers would picket the Fansteel grounds, President Robert J. Aitchison postponed the reopening preparations, pending court hearing on Fansteel's application for an injunction against mass picketing.

"Why not wait for the judge to have his say," a Fansteel spokesman commented. "Another day won't make any difference." While approximately 100 pickets carrying banners, with red, white and blue ribbons in their lapels, paraded before the Fansteel gates, the United Press correspondent gained entrance and was permitted to tour the buildings which had been a strikers' fortress for nine days.

The correspondent found nine workers, including one woman, starting to clean up debris.

FRED FAGG, JR. TAKES VIDAL'S AVIATION POST

WASHINGTON, March 1—(UP)—Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper announced today the appointment of Professor Fred Fagg, Jr., of Northwestern university law school, to succeed Eugene Vidal as director of the bureau of air commerce. Vidal resigned, effective today.

Windsor's Settlement Agreed On, Report Says

LONDON, Mar. 1—(UP)—A basis of settlement has been reached for the financial future of the Duke of Windsor, an authoritative source said today, but details remain to be worked out.

Basis for agreement was said to have been reached between the duke and his financial adviser, Sir Walter Monckton, who visited him at Ennsfeld, Austria, last week.

Protect Against Writing
One of the matters on which Monckton consulted the duke, the informant said, was some form of guarantee that would protect the royal family and the government against any memoir writing, newspaper writing or appearances in public by reason of the Duke's expected marriage to Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

The basis for agreement was said to be:
A capital trust fund would be provided from the estate of King

George V, most of it intended for Mrs. Simpson and any children of the marriage in event the duke died. This sum would be administered by King George VI's financial advisers. His wife, would draw interest on the sum but not control the capital.

In the event that the duke, Mrs. Simpson and any offspring all died, the money would revert to the royal family.
Size of Sum Uncertain
The informant said that the size (Continued on Page Eight)

Writer's Widow Tells Of Struggle With Gun

Mrs. Pearson Recovers From Hysteria Long Enough to Relate Story

TRIED TO TAKE PISTOL

Attempt at Suicide Feared, Woman Says Monday

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., March 1—(UP)—Humphrey Pearson, screen writer, was killed when he and his wife struggled for possession of a gun, Mrs. Pearson told officers today when she recovered sufficiently from hysteria and shock to be questioned. She tried to take the gun from him because she feared he intended suicide, she said.

Sheriff Carl Rayburn and W. F. Walrath, his deputy, said Mrs. Pearson's recollection of the ride home from a cocktail bar shortly before the shooting was very hazy. Witnesses previously testified she and Pearson were intoxicated.

"Mrs. Pearson says she didn't realize the gun had been fired until after she got possession of it, put it away in a bathroom drawer and then returned to the bedroom," Walrath said. "Then she saw blood and screamed for help. She said she was surprised to find him wounded."

Heard Door Slam

Mrs. Pearson told officers that she was undressing when she heard a door slam.

"He was afraid of burglars and kidnapers," Mrs. Pearson told the officers. "When I came into his room he was handling the gun and I grabbed for it. It was just as I had done on other occasions, for I feared he would hurt himself or would commit suicide. I have a faint recollection that the gun went off."

When Mrs. Pearson got the gun she took it to the bathroom. Her husband was sprawled unconscious on the bed when she returned.

"I was massaging his arms and legs, fearing he had fainted," Walrath quoted her. "When I saw blood and screamed for help. I was surprised to find him wounded."

BERRODIN SAYS PENSION AWARD TO BE REDUCED

COLUMBUS, March 1—(UP)—A gradual reduction in the average monthly pension award, from the August $25 peak, is being made in the state, H. J. Berrodin, chief of the state division of aid for the aged, said today.

The August peak, Berrodin pointed out, represented a flat $10 monthly increase ordered by the governor for all pension recipients. During that month, $2,274,170 was spent in rendering assistance to 90,987 persons.

The latest pension figures disclosed that the average award was $24.34 when 99,705 received $2,426,667 in January.

The individual reductions, Berrodin said, are being made on budgetary needs of the recipient according to prevailing commodity prices in the particular counties.

February is expected to show both an increase in the number of recipients, placing the old age pension roll over 100,000.

BODY OF PROFESSOR, 39, FOUND DEAD IN SWAMP

I. T. Clement Dissinger, 39, Pennsylvania State college professor, whose body was found Saturday in a swamp near Sunbury, Pa., had visited in Circleville on many occasions. Police said they believed the teacher killed himself.

Mr. Dissinger while here was the guest of Paul Schleyer, former Circleville resident who now lives in Washington, D. C.
Dissinger was an English teacher. He had been missing since last Monday.

PEN OFFICIALS TO TEST KILLER OF CELL-MATE

COLUMBUS, Mar. 1—(UP)—Ohio state penitentiary officials today were to hold a mental examination for Charles Morgan, 36, sullen Cleveland bank robber who killed his cellmate, 23-year-old George Ruch because he was "tired of being with him."

According to Warden James C. Woodard, Morgan, who is serving his fifth term, admitted he struck Ruch on the head last night with a jagged piece of broken wash-bowl.

Morgan said Ruch had gone to bed in the lower bunk and objected when he turned on the water to clean the bowl. When Ruch complained a second time because the running water kept him awake, Morgan struck him.

Ruch had undergone an appendectomy 10 days ago and was moved to Morgan's cell. The slain man was sentenced from Cleveland in 1935 for burglary and robbery.

Prison officials said Morgan was known as a "bad actor" and on a previous occasion had slashed another prisoner with a knife while standing in line.

BRITISH LINER AIDS SEVENTEEN ITALIAN SAILORS

GIBRALTAR, March 1—(UP)—The British liner Tuscania arrived today with 17 survivors of the Italian steamer Jolanda, which capsized off Cadiz in a fierce gale. The chief engineer and one member of the crew were taken to the hospital suffering with pneumonia. The other 15 survivors were embarked for Italy. One member of the crew was lost.

WASHINGTON C. H. TO ASK $50,000 TO FIX STREETS

WASHINGTON C. H., March 1—Washington C. H. will soon submit a $50,000 street repair project to WPA headquarters in Chillicothe.

The project includes resurfacing three miles of streets and is designed to place all city streets in good repair.

It is planned to use maintenance and repair money from the gasoline tax and auto tax fund for the city's share of the project. The project would provide employment to many men.

JUDGES REMAIN OUT OF CONTEST OVER REVISION

Many Controversial Laws Yet to be Acted on as Nation Debates Reorganization

RULING IS SIGNIFICANT.

Future Currency Control May be Affected by Decision

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1—(UP)—The Supreme Court, by failing to present opinions today in a series of controversial cases, presented an indication, observers believed, that it would decline to be drawn into the nation-wide controversy concerning its future.

Despite the fact that the court has pending before it a half dozen disputed cases the only major decision presented today was one reaffirming and extending the opinion of January, 1934 which upheld the New Deal's emergency gold legislation.

Contract Involved

The outlawing of contracts calling for gold payments was upheld by the court in the gold decision of two years ago. The case involved a $1,500 rental contract between the Holyoke Water Power Co., of Holyoke, Mass., and the American Wrapping Paper Co.

The ruling was written by Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, and was joined by Justices Charles E. Hughes, George Sutherland and Pierce Butler, who dissented in the first gold decision dissented in today's opinion also.

The decision was regarded as significant because of its possible effect on future control of the currency through legislation.

The Water Power Company, when offered devalued currency by the paper company, charged that the contract called for payment of gold as a commodity and was therefore not included in those contracts outlawed by congress. It also asserted that if congress attempted to outlaw gold (Continued on Page Eight)

RELIEF CHECKS FOR FIRST TWO MONTHS MAILED

Appropriations from the state for work and direct relief for January and February were received Monday by the county commissioners. The January allotment was $1,212.77 and February, $1,353.64.

Although city and county officials from throughout the state converged on Columbus Monday to present to the legislature a united demand for an additional emergency relief appropriation of $2,000,000, no Pickaway countians were in the group.

County officials have not deemed it necessary to ask for any larger amounts than those given the county.

HAYS REQUESTS AID FOR FLOOD CONTROL PLANS

Hulse Hays, postmaster and a member of the Pickaway county flood control committee, appealed to members of the Chamber of Commerce Monday noon to write to congressmen urging that the flood control program throughout Ohio valley be paid entirely by the government and be under the direction of government engineers. R. L. Brehner, urged members of the C. of C. to write congressmen voicing opposition to the proposed change in the Supreme Court setup. The organization did not go on record on the matter, but most of those present expressed themselves as opposed to any change in the court.

PAY SLASH APPROVED

WASHINGTON, March 1—(UP)—The Supreme Court today held the action of the New York City, N. J., school board during the salary dispute of teachers during the dispute.

CHILDREN WATCH FATHER, 34, DIE IN AKRON LAKE

AKRON, March 1—(UP)—Two children saw their father drown in a small lake in Virginia Kendall State park, near here, as the parent held their brother above the water until aid reached him.

Russell Pedlar, 34, a Cleveland cab driver, had taken the children to the lake yesterday to give them skating lessons, but found the ice too thin. He took his son, Gordon, 6, for a sled ride over the thin ice and both dropped into the water when the ice broke.

The other children, Geraldine, 10, and Richard, 13, witnessed the accident from the shore.

The boy was rescued by Chauncey Beegle and Edward Callahan, both of Akron, who heard the children's cries for help. The father was drowned after his son was taken to safety.

Heard Door Slam

Mrs. Pearson told officers that she was undressing when she heard a door slam.

"He was afraid of burglars and kidnappers," Mrs. Pearson told the officers. "When I came into his room he was handling the gun and I grabbed for it. It was just as I had done on other occasions, for I feared he would hurt himself or would commit suicide. I have a faint recollection that the gun went off."

When Mrs. Pearson got the gun she took it to the bathroom. Her husband was sprawled unconscious on the bed when she returned.

"I was massaging his arms and legs, fearing he had fainted," Walrath quoted her. "When I saw blood and screamed for help. I was surprised to find him wounded."

BERRODIN SAYS PENSION AWARD TO BE REDUCED

COLUMBUS, March 1—(UP)—A gradual reduction in the average monthly pension award, from the August $25 peak, is being made in the state, H. J. Berrodin, chief of the state division of aid for the aged, said today.

The August peak, Berrodin pointed out, represented a flat $10 monthly increase ordered by the governor for all pension recipients. During that month, $2,274,170 was spent in rendering assistance to 99,987 persons.

The latest pension figures disclose that the average award was $24.34 when 99,705 received $2,426,667 in January.

The individual reductions, Berrodin said, are being made on budgetary needs of the recipient according to prevailing commodity prices in the particular counties.

February is expected to show both an increase in the number of recipients, placing the old age pension roll over 100,000.

BODY OF PROFESSOR, 39, FOUND DEAD IN SWAMP

I. T. Clement Dissinger, 39, Pennsylvania State college professor, whose body was found Saturday in a swamp near Sunbury, Pa., had visited in Circleville on many occasions. Police said they believed the teacher killed himself.

Mr. Dissinger while here was the guest of Paul Schleyer, former Circleville resident who now lives in Washington, D. C.

Dissinger was an English teacher. He had been missing since last Monday.

PEN OFFICIALS TO TEST KILLER OF CELL-MATE

COLUMBUS, Mar. 1—(UP)—Ohio state penitentiary officials today were to hold a mental examination for Charles Morgan, 36, sullen Cleveland bank robber who killed his cellmate, 23-year-old George Ruch because he was "tired of being with him."

According to Warden James C. Woodward, Morgan, who is serving his fifth term, admitted he struck Ruch on the head last night with a jagged piece of broken wash-bowl.

Morgan said Ruch had gone to bed in the lower bunk and objected when he turned on the water to clean the bowl. When Ruch complained a second time because the running water kept him awake, Morgan struck him.

Ruch had undergone an appendectomy 10 days ago and was moved to Morgan's cell. The slain man was sentenced from Cleveland in 1935 for burglary and robbery.

Prison officials said Morgan was known as a "bad actor" and on a previous occasion had slashed another prisoner with a knife while standing in line.

BRITISH LINER AIDS SEVENTEEN ITALIAN SAILORS

GIBRALTAR, March 1—(UP)—The British liner Tuscania arrived today with 17 survivors of the Italian steamer Jolanda, which capsized off Cadiz in a fierce gale. The chief engineer and one member of the crew were taken to the hospital suffering with pneumonia. The other 15 survivors were embarked for Italy. One member of the crew was lost.

WASHINGTON C. H. TO ASK $50,000 TO FIX STREETS

WASHINGTON C. H., March 1—Washington C. H. will soon submit a $50,000 street repair project to WPA headquarters in Chillicothe.

The project includes resurfacing three miles of streets and is designed to place all city streets in good repair.

It is planned to use maintenance and repair money from the gasoline tax and auto tax fund for the city's share of the project. The project would provide employment to many men.

JUDGES REMAIN OUT OF CONTEST OVER REVISION

Many Controversial Laws Yet to be Acted on as Nation Debates Reorganization

RULING IS SIGNIFICANT

Future Currency Control May be Affected by Decision

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1—(UP)—The Supreme Court, by failing to present opinions today in a series of controversial cases, presented an indication, observers believed, that it would decline to be drawn into the nation-wide controversy concerning its future.

Despite the fact that the court has pending before it a half dozen disputed cases the only major decision presented today was one reaffirming and extending the opinion of January, 1934 which upheld the New Deal's emergency gold legislation.

Contract Involved

The outlawing of contracts calling for gold payments was upheld by the court in the gold decision of two years ago. The case involved a $150,000 rental contract between the Holyoke Water Power Co., of Holyoke, Mass., and the American Wrapping Paper Co.

The ruling was written by Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo. Justices Willis VanDevanter, James C. McReynolds, George Sutherland and Pierce Butler, who dissented in the first gold decision dissented in today's opinion also.

The decision was regarded as significant because of its possible effect on future control of the currency through legislation.

The Water Power Company, when offered devalued currency by the paper company, charged that the contract called for payment of gold as a commodity and was therefore not included in those contracts outlawed by congress. It also asserted that if congress attempted to outlaw gold

RELIEF CHECKS FOR FIRST TWO MONTHS MAILED

Appropriations from the state for work and direct relief for January and February were received Monday by the county commissioners. The January allotment was $1,212.77 and February, $1,353.64.

Although city and county officials from throughout the state converged on Columbus Monday to present to the legislature a united demand for an additional emergency relief appropriation of $2,000,000, no Pickaway countians were in the group.

County officials have not deemed it necessary to ask for any larger amounts than those given the county.

HAYS REQUESTS AID FOR FLOOD CONTROL PLANS

Hulse Hays, postmaster and a member of the Pickaway county flood control committee, appealed to members of the Chamber of Commerce Monday noon to write to congressmen urging that the flood control program throughout the Ohio valley be paid entirely by the government and be under the direction of government engineers.

R. L. Brehmer, urged members of the C. of C. to write congressmen voicing opposition to the proposed change in the Supreme Court setup. The organization did not go on record on the matter, but most of those present expressed themselves as opposed to any change in the court.

New Definition of Commerce Expected to Be Made

[illegible]

CHICAGO, ILL., MAY 10, 1906.

NEW NRA PLAN IS READY FOR F.D.R.'S STUDY

40-Hour Week for Industry Included in Measure to Be Offered Congress

WORK NOT REGULATED

New Definition of Commerce Expected to Be Made

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(UP)—An NRA substitute bill which would set a maximum 40 hour week for industry, secure the legality of collective bargaining, and create a three man administrative board to regulate hours and wages has been prepared for President Roosevelt's approval. It was learned today from an unimpeachable source.

The measure is expected by those who have drafted it with White House assistance to be submitted to congress in about a month along with Mr. Roosevelt's anticipated message on labor legislation.

As now visualized, it makes no provision for regulating or controlling industry. Administration advisers concede that one of the primary reasons for the failure of the National Industrial Recovery act was its attempt to regulate capital and labor with the same machinery.

In Separate Measure

Any endeavor to establish new methods of industrial control will be withheld and drafted in a separate measure, presidential advisers told the United Press. The wage and hour measure as it is now conceived in practically finished form provides:

1. Separate week-week limitations for various industries with a maximum of 40 hours a week.
2. Assurance of collective bargaining to workers by subjecting industries to jurisdiction of the national labor relations board. If that agency were outlawed by the Supreme Court, new provisions would be made to assure adequate collective bargaining protection.
3. Application of the law only to those industries engaged in interstate commerce. A new definition of interstate commerce is planned broad enough to include in the bill's scope the major part of American manufacturing industry.

4. Establishment of minimum wages. No figure has been set yet, but it will be based on state minimum wage laws and the Walsh-Healey government contracts act.
5. Safety codes for each industry.
6. Establishment of a three-member central council to consult industry and labor and to appoint advisory councils for each industry.
7. Industrial advisory councils, composed of nine members—three each from industry, labor and the public—to supervise provisions of the bill.

Proponents of the measure admit that it actually constitutes a revival of the labor provisions of NRA with two distinct differences in its operation. They are:

1. The procedure involved for setting up industrial standards would be much the same as that employed before state minimum wage commissions.
2. The new definition of interstate commerce is expected to give the act a sound legal basis and would permit the central council to promulgate codes covering every major type of industry except such purely intrastate businesses such as the operation of hotels, or retail dealers. These would be allowed to remain under the jurisdiction of state laws.

Lyman Bell Recalls Historic 1895 Race

Running of the $100,000 race at Santa Anita, Saturday, brings memories to Lyman Bell, N. Court street of a classic event 42 years ago in Chicago.

Both races, Mr. Bell explained, were considered the "tops" of their respective dates.

The race of 42 years ago, referred to by Mr. Bell, was when Lucky Baldwin's Rey El Santa Anita galloped to victory at the Washington Park track at Chicago capturing the $30,000 prize in the last American derby at that track.

YOUTH BUMPED BY AUTO FLEES WITHOUT HURTS

A youth bumped by an auto Saturday night at Court and Franklin streets escaped unhurt or he could never have developed the speed he turned on when running away from the scene, police agreed.

Officers said the auto was driven by Clarence A. Daugherty, of 213 Dana avenue, Columbus. After being bumped the youth jumped to his feet, ran east on Franklin street and disappeared.

When struck, the youth dropped a jug but no one learned what it contained. Another youth picked up the container and departed on E. Franklin street with the same speed the first had displayed.

VIDAL GIVES UP POST AS HEAD OF U. S. AVIATION

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(UP)—Eugene L. Vidal, youthful, prematurely gray director of the Bureau of Air Commerce, whose administration has been criticized for more than a year, resigned today to enter commercial aviation.

His resignation had been reported intermittently since it was demanded by the senate commerce committee last spring. But Vidal refused to quit under fire. He insisted privately that he would not be made the "goat" of criticism resulting from numerous commercial airline crashes.

Vidal evaded questions today concerning reports that he was leaving his post because of criticism of the bureau following crashes which have taken 37 lives since Dec. 1, 1935. So did Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper and Assistant Secretary J. Monroe Johnson.

"All you can quote me as saying," Vidal said, "is that I feel very chippy now, and stress the now."

SPAIN'S FAMOUS ACTRESS ALIVE, FEDERAL CLAIM

AVILA, Spain, March 1.—(UP)—Rosita Diaz, Spain's most famous actress has not been executed as a spy, as reported last week, but is alive and well in Segovia, the nationalist army general headquarters said today.

Miss Diaz, who, while making a picture in Hollywood, sat for nine hours in a bath tub, has appeared in a picture in the Spanish stage, toured Latin America and has made pictures in Spain and Paris.

When reports that she had been executed reached Miss Diaz she sent cables to friends in the United States announcing that she was in good health. It was said.

ELAINE BARRIE ENDS HER SUIT AGAINST ACTOR

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.—(UP)—Elaine Barrie's lawyer promised to go into court today and ask for dismissal of her suit for alimony from John Barrymore, the aging Adonis whom she pursued across the country to wed.

Movie colony gossip sensed a new romance in the life of the red-lipped former Brooklyn schoolgirl that probably accounted for her change of heart. She had been demanding $2,525 a month alimony. Later, her name has been linked with that of William Tannen, son of the vaudevillean Julius Tannen.

"Not only does she want no alimony now, said Attorney Leo L. Schauer, but she will withdraw her demand for court costs "and there will be no attorney's fees."

Barrymore showed no interest. At last reports he was still basking out at his desert retreat.

PEON IS GRILLED AS MURDERER OF ARGENTINA BOY

BUENOS AIRES, March 1.—(UP)—After nearly 48 hours of silence, Jose Gancedo, an itinerant peon suspect of complicity in the kidnap-murder of 2-year-old Eugenio Pereyra Iraola, broke under police questioning today and began to talk. But he did not admit any part in the crime.

Physicians who examined Gancedo said he was perfectly sane and that his studied silence seemed to indicate "a carefully planned defense."

From the time of his arrest, in a round-up of ranch workers shortly before the battered, nude body of the child was found Saturday in a cornfield near the famous ranch of his wealthy parents, Gancedo had maintained a stubborn silence about himself and his past.

Police suspicions were first directed at Gancedo when he fled to Mar Del Plata, a nearby seaside resort and shipping center, where he shaved off his beard, while posing as seeking the child whose fate closely paralleled the Lindbergh tragedy.

An autopsy revealed that the baby, heir to one of Argentina's greatest cattle fortunes, had died of strangulation.

Screams coming from Gancedo's cell today attracted his pallers who had been questioning him almost continuously since Saturday. They found the prisoner tearing his clothes and beating his head against the wall.

ARLEN, EILERS APPEAR MONDAY IN CAPPY RICKS

Winninger, Peter Kye and Others Have Parts in Show

A three-star cast headlines the bill for the Radio Theatre's production of "Cappy Ricks" tonight.

Charles Winniger, in the title role, has in the cast with him, Richard Arlen and Sally Eilers, romantic starring team from the movies.

Produced by Cecil B. DeMille, "Cappy Ricks" will be broadcast over the Columbia network at 9 o'clock.

Arlen plays the part of the rival sea captain who's taking business away from Cappy Ricks. Sally Eilers is Cappy's daughter and she's in love with her father's business rival.

Dick Arlen and Sally Eilers have been starred together in pictures and both have previously appeared in the Radio Theatre.

Peter B. Kye, who wrote "Cappy Ricks," will be interviewed between acts of the play Monday evening.

The following pupils have made more book reports this year than what is required: Patty McGinnis, Edith Dunkle, Helen Pontious, Roger May, George Wilson, Fannie Mae Duddleson, Mary Jane Kreisel, Mary Alice Duvall, Charles Hall, James Andrews and Betty Duvall held the record with 12 books each.

This and That About Our School

The lunch system as operated by the board of education with Mrs. Alkire as cook and Miss Marshall as manager is furnishing hot lunch to about 150 daily.

The next meeting of the Pickaway County Teachers will be held here in our auditorium on Saturday March 20.

At a recent faculty meeting, it was decided that we needed a better system of accounting for our various student activities. Accordingly we are establishing a fund known as the Pickaway School Activities. All classes and other organizations will conduct their business as usual, but will enter their funds into the General Activities, where it will be kept in a bank.

The advantages of this system are:

1. There will be only one fund for our school activities and all money will be kept in the bank.
2. There will be a systematic method of bookkeeping, whereby all records will be kept for future reference.
3. All payments made by the treasurer of each organization, will be approved by the sponsor, who is a faculty advisor.

The science laboratory and print shop have been equipped with Philips, which is nothing more than natural gas. It supplies a much needed source of fuel for laboratory burners, and makes possible the use of the linograph machine in the print room.

The second semester introduced a new class in our high school curriculum. A number of boys in the junior and senior years requested a class in Home Economics, which was granted. Miss Marshall, our Home Economics instructor reports a keen interest is being taken by the boys in this work. It should prove valuable for any boy to have a knowledge of foods, their nutritive values and relative costs, because men often do the purchasing for the home. Other values will be derived from a knowledge of proper table manners, etiquette, etc.

Each Friday during the noon hour at 12:30 two educational reels of film are shown in the auditorium. The machine is operated by John Cooper and Don Miller. Pay-

OHIO LIBRARIES TO RECEIVE AID OF STATE FUND

COLUMBUS, March 1.—(UP)—Qualified public libraries in Ohio which are in financial need will again receive state funds from an appropriation bill recently signed by Governor Davey.

The law, which becomes effective early in May, appropriates $150,000 from the general revenue fund to be administered to libraries under the direction of the state library board. The law provides that the money be used for operating expenses and the purchase and repair of books and periodicals and for no other purpose.

Each Friday during the noon hour at 12:30 two educational reels of film are shown in the auditorium. The machine is operated by John Cooper and Don Miller. Pay-

STATE'S FARM LEADERS MEET TO TALK TAXES

Conference Called for Tuesday in Columbus; Green to Preside

ECONOMIC LIBERTY CITED

Move to Shift Expenses Back to Municipalities Hit

"The economic liberties of the people of Ohio are seriously endangered if our program of taxation is not soon put on a sounder and more feasible basis," declared Perry L. Green, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau, Columbus, Saturday, as he discussed at a conference of farm bureau representatives the problem of adequately financing Ohio government.

The meeting was one of a series held in preparation for a larger state-wide conference of county farm bureau legislative chairmen and membership representatives, which will be held at the Neil House in Columbus, across the street from state capitol, Tuesday.

"We have called this meeting of representatives of the farm population of Ohio," said Mr. Green, in order to present to them the facts about the hodge-podge of impractical and opportunist tax proposals now before the legislature, and the imperative need for working out now an equitable basis for tax collection.

Farmers To Contest

"In the face of unprecedented demands for a state-wide tax program to take care of state-wide conditions," continued the farm organization leader, "we are confronted by a likewise unprecedented array of effort on the part of bureaucrats and representatives of selfish interests to stampede a shift of the tax burden to the least articulate and most docile group they can find, with no regard for ability to pay or equity of assessment. The farmers of Ohio, interested in good government, but already carrying too great a portion of the tax burden, will no longer be found in that group.

Explaining that more than 60 percent of the families of America receive less than $1,000 a year, thus making a substantial portion of our population economically dependent, Mr. Green maintained that the taxation of real estate, the general sales tax, and attempts to shift additional government operation costs back to counties and municipalities, are not only impractical and unfair but also "unsound from a purely selfish viewpoint because they take an undue portion of the cost of government from monies needed wholly for the purchase of subsistence needs, and thus reduce the purchasing power of a large part of our people. Every nickel exacted by taxation from these under-maintenance incomes is taken entirely from business volume and consequently from the consumption of commodities produced."

Donald Courtright Buys Hay's Dairy Business

History of Village View Farm Traced as Sale is Announced

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

The Village View Farm dairy is a thing of the past, the Hay people, John W. Hay & Sons, having sold their entire outfit to Donald Courtright the other neighborhood dairyman, west of town. What was known as the Scioto Valley Dairy was established in 1911 by James G. Hay, he having purchased the Charles and Woodford Ward dairy and ice cream outfit. This was continued to fall of 1918 and from this time to March 1924, Harry Reed, Charles Cardray, Mrs. Neubauer, Ralph Stevenson and Jesse Courtright supplied the citizens of Ashville with most of the dairy needs, and during this period just named. There were 26 cows kept in the village by several people. In March, 1924, the Hay people purchased the dairy outfit from Ralph Stevenson and named it The Village View Farm dairy. They have served well and faithfully the thirteen years they have been in the dairy business. Paul Hay who gave us this information said "he had his good fill of the cow business and if I ever milk another one it will not wholly be my fault." Says he likes the horse game better and now has 43 head of good ones. "But while I am doing the talking it is still John W. Hay & Sons," he said.

County Banks High

The average person probably does not know that Pickaway county ranks well toward the top in the feeding and marketing of beef cattle. Three sizable herds were shipped out from the county last week for the New York City market at a price of $12 per cwt. They came from the feed lots of W. M. Cromley, W. H. Plum, Ashville and John Stevenson, Circleville. The average run of good beef cattle, they tell us, sells now at around $8 per cwt. and more according to quality.

Remember Zero March

Who remembers the "Zero March"? We are just guessing it was about 1900. It was the custom then to "put up" ice at most every farm home. Many built substantial buildings maybe about 20x24 feet, double-walled with sawdust as the vacuum filler. The winter we refer to was such as this one has been, not cold enough to freeze over the ponds and streams from which blocks could be sawed and stored into the houses for the hot summer months. But what did that March bring? Zero, or near, temperature for a week or more and the ice houses were all filled with thick blocks of good quality ice. If any of you "youngsters" recall the March we refer to, kindly inform us of it.

STATE'S FARM LEADERS MEET TO TALK TAXES

Conference Called for Tuesday in Columbus; Green to Preside

ECONOMIC LIBERTY CITED

Move to Shift Expenses Back to Municipalities Hit

"The economic liberties of the people of Ohio are seriously endangered if our program of taxation is not soon put on a sounder and more feasible basis," declared Perry L. Green, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau, Columbus, Saturday, as he discussed at a conference of farm bureau representatives the problem of adequately financing Ohio government.

The meeting was one of a series held in preparation for a larger state-wide conference of county farm bureau legislative chairmen and membership representatives, which will be held at the Neil House in Columbus, across the street from state capitol, Tuesday. "We have called this meeting of representatives of the farm population of Ohio," said Mr. Green, in order to present to the facts about the hodge-podge of impractical and opportunist tax proposals now before the legislature, and the imperative need for working out now an equitable basis for tax collection.

Farmers To Contest

"In the face of unprecedented demands for a state-wide tax program to take care of state-wide conditions," continued the farm organization leader, "we are confronted by a likewise unprecedented array of effort on the part of bureaucrats and representatives of selfish interests to stamper a shift of the tax burden to the least articulate and most docile group they can find, with no regard for ability to pay or equity of assessment. The farmers of Ohio, interested in good government, but already carrying too great a portion of the tax burden, will no longer be found in that group.

Explaining that more than 60 percent of the families of America receive less than $1,000 a year, thus making a substantial portion of our population economically dependent, Mr. Green maintained that the taxation of real estate, the general sales tax, and attempts to shift additional government operation costs back to counties and municipalities, are not only impractical and unfair but also "unsound from a purely selfish viewpoint because they take an undue portion of the cost of government from monies needed wholly for the purchase of subsistence needs, and thus reduce the purchasing power of a large part of our people. Every nickel exacted by taxation from these under-maintenance incomes is taken entirely from business volume and consequently from the consumption of commodities produced."

THEATRES

AT THE CIRCLE

Tod Browning's search for his mysterious "Svengali Woman" ended when the hypnotic eyes of Grace Ford, former dancing teacher of Tulsa, Oklahoma, won her role. She plays Laschna, weird mystery woman in "The Devil Doll." Browning's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer mystery picture, starring Lionel Barrymore, now showing at the Circle Theatre.

AT THE GRAND

Clark Gable's success in motion pictures was not easily obtained. The husky, six-foot star boasts that he occupied every seat in every casting office in Hollywood at least three times before he obtained a contract with a studio. Gable is now playing the role of heavyweight champion of the world, in the Cosmopolitan production, "Cain and Abel," co-starring Marion Davies, at the Grand Theatre.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Beautiful Claudette Colbert becomes a demure Puritan maiden in "Maid of Salem," a romance in which she is co-starred with Fred MacMurray, for the final showing tonight and Tuesday at the Cliftona Theatre. It is a far cry from "Cigarette" or "Under Two Flags," or "Poppaea" of "Sign of the Cross," to the Salem beauty accused of witchcraft because she refuses to reveal the name of the man she loves, but Miss Colbert's grand ability is equal to the task.

The world's present patent system is traced back to the plan in the 'Statute of Monopolies,' which made all monopolies illegal except those applied to new manufacturers or inventions, passed by English parliament in 1623.

Heir to $40,000,000 Weds Clerk

NEWLYWEDS smile, and this pair have something to smile about — $40,000,000! That's the fortune John Thomas Auld, 33, former shoe salesman in Washington, soon will inherit. His bride is the former Margaret Esther Dawson, 27, a state department clerk. The inheritance money began circulating in Scotland many years ago. It has grown to the huge amount in the many years that heirs of the clan Auld were sought over the world. Scotch solicitors located Auld, rightful heir, in Washington in 1934.

Donald Courtright Buys Hay's Dairy Business

History of Village View Farm Traced as Sale is Announced

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

The Village View Farm dairy is a thing of the past, the Hay people, John W. Hay & Sons, having sold their entire outfit to Donald Courtright the other neighborhood dairyman, west of town. What was known as the Scioto Valley Dairy was established in 1911 by James G. Hay, he having purchased the Charles and Woodford Ward dairy and ice cream outfit. This was continued to fall of 1918 and from this time to March 1924, Harry Reed, Charles Cardray, Mrs. Neubauer, Ralph Stevenson and Jesse Courtright supplied the citizens of Ashville with most of the dairy needs, and during this period just named. There were 26 cows kept in the village by several people. In March, 1924, the Hay people purchased the dairy outfit from Ralph Stevenson and named it The Village View Farm dairy. They have served well and faithfully the thirteen years they have been in the dairy business. Paul Hay who gave us this information said "he had his good fill of the cow business and if I ever milk another one it will not wholly be my fault." Says he likes the horse game better and now has 43 head of good ones. "But while I am doing the talking it is still John W. Hay & Sons," he said.

County Ranks High

The average person probably does not know that Pickaway county ranks well toward the top in the feeding and marketing of beef cattle. Three sizable herds were shipped out from the county last week for the New York City market at a price of $12 per cwt. They came from the feed lots of W. M. Cromley, W. H. Plum, Ashville and John Stevenson, Circleville. The average run of good beef cattle, they tell us, sells now at around $8 per cwt. and more according to quality.

Visit Parents

The Boone sisters, nurses, were home over Sunday, Jennie from Huntington, W. Va., and Frances, Columbus.

More About Courtright

The Donald Courtright dairy was established six years ago. We will have more to say about it in the near future.

Remember Zero March

Who remembers the "Zero March"? We are just guessing it was about 1900. It was the custom then to "put up" ice at most every farm home. Many built substantial buildings maybe about 20x24 feet, double-walled with sawdust as the vacuum filler. The winter we refer to was such as this one has been, not cold enough to freeze over the ponds and streams from which blocks could be sawed and stored into the houses for the hot summer months. But what did that March bring? Zero, or near, temperature for a week or more and the ice houses were all filled with thick blocks of good quality ice. If any of you "youngsters" recall the March we refer to, kindly inform us of it.

MONEY FOR PLAY

WHEN the people have money for play that must necessarily mean that money is easier to get than it was not so long ago. It follows, too, that being easier to get many find it easier to let it go.

That at least seems to be a fair conclusion to draw from reports that business at the country's winter resorts was very much better this winter than for several years. Of course, it may be assumed that the weather has had something to do with drawing crowds to these play spots. But it is also reasonable to believe that the playing crowds are another proof of improving business conditions—one of the reasons why we should all be increasingly cheerful.

Concessionaires declare that people seem to be in a more carefree mood, that dollar bills instead of small silver are increasingly in evidence.

There are wise old birds among the gentry which deals with the people in their periods of play. They can read signs that are unseen by most of us. That doubtless is why they stress the appearance of dollar bills in place of small silver.

FREE PRESS UPHELD

MEMBERS of the lower house of the Tennessee Legislature deserve credit for killing the "gag law" that was designed to intimidate the State's newspaper editors and publishers. The bill was decidedly un-American, since it constituted a deliberate assault on the principle of freedom of the press.

It is a matter of nationwide interest for a State lawmaking body thus to take a strong stand in opposition to the attempt of political interests to gag the press and thereby avert the possibility of vigorous criticism.

Fortunately, the United States Supreme Court has never failed to declare unconstitutional such restrictive measures as have come before it for consideration.

But it is even better for that kind of vicious legislation to be killed at the source, for that is the best possible evidence of popular interest in the untrammelled publication of news and comment.

A girl bandit in New York held up a restaurant with a toy pistol—the sissy.

The longer the Spanish war continues the less victory will be worth when it comes.

It has got so that when an old-fashioned citizen cries, "Great Caesar!" Il Duce takes a bow.

There is still tenderness and loving kindness in the world. Listen to the radio man advertising beauty aids.

There isn't much to worry about when a "grave crisis" sets statesmen to talking instead of writing sassy notes.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

What a lovely alarm clock is sunshine. Never yet have regretted the advent of day accompanied by the sun. So, in a whistling mood, about the business of dressing and finally below stairs for the usual coffee and oven toast.

Saw in the paper that Vic Donahay has gone over to those opposed to the New Deal sunshine court program. And right pleased by that, too, for the politician believes that the court belongs more to the people as a whole than to an administration. As Roosevelt. If a change is to be made, it should be only after the majority of the voters have indicated in its favor.

Read with interest a dispatch regarding the world conference to be held in America, its objective the ironing out of present world difficulties. Would suggest that before the European diplomats arrive that the United States treasury be moved from Washington to Seattle. We are now trying the great experiment of trying to buy prosperity for the United States and it is costing plenty. Have no stomach for an attempt to use American dollars in buying world prosperity. No American income is great enough to stand that.

Chatted with Mack Parrett, the realtor, who is optimistic on the remodeling and new program for Spring and Summer. Exchanged salutations with George Fitzpatrick, the printer, Judge Young and Sheriff Radcliff. Met the new proprietor of the Joseph stock, but learned nothing of the store's future other than an immediate sale of a few weeks duration. Pleased to learn that Sam Joseph is recovering from a cold that for a time threatened to turn into pneumonia.

Congratulations to those Pickaway boys and girls who swept away all opposition in the county tournament. And to their coach as well. Talked to a score of men who would have enjoyed witnessing the contests, but were unable to obtain seats or even standing room.

Reber Bell, who daily by way of short wave radio talks with men and women all over the world, has lost an old friend. For a long time Reber talked at frequent intervals with a young man in Madrid. Then came the revolution and in time the young Spaniard announced that he had joined the army. Now, through mutual friends in Cuba, Reber has learned that his young friend has been killed. I wonder whether anyone, except those who stand to profit, wishes war?

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

F. D. PILING MESSAGES ON CONGRESS

WASHINGTON — Judging from the amount of homework the President has dumped into the lap of Congress, the solons will be sweltering under the Capitol dome well through the summer.

Since January 5, when Congress convened, Roosevelt has sent eight separate messages to Capitol Hill—and there are more in the offing. Plus routine supply bills, any one of these during normal times would be enough to engage Congress for a considerable period.

Here is a tabulation of the fodder he has shoved down the congressional maw so far:

January 6—Annual message on the state of the Union.

January 12—Message on government reorganization.

February 1—Message asking legislation to authorize acceptance of the Mellon art gift.

February 3—Report of the National Resources Committee on flood control.

February 10—Report of the Great Plains Committee on drought remedies.

February 16—Message on farm tenancy.

February 18—Message asking for crop insurance program.

Except for work given the special session of Congress called immediately after Roosevelt's inauguration in 1933, this is a record list. Usually Roosevelt gives Congress time partially to clear the decks before sending it new proposals.

But this time it was wise strategy for him to emphasize the amount of important legislation awaiting some change in the Supreme Court before it can be made effective. So Roosevelt has crammed the legislative hopper full in a little over one month.

SENATE VARIETY SHOW

One of the most important parts of the Senate investigation into Pinkerton detective labor spying is the technique of the two Senators who draw it out of them.

LaFollette of Wisconsin and Thomas of Utah, the impresarios of this Senate drama, are as unlike as Mutt and Jeff. Bob LaFollette is young, incisive, relentless. He stares at a witness with impassive gaze, beats him down with trip-hammer questioning.

Elbert Thomas, who had been a Utah college professor for 20 years before he came to the Senate, looks like a friendly old country doctor. He puts a question in grave, kindly tones, as if he were saying, "How long have you had this fever, Mr. Pinkerton?"

LaFollette keeps his witnesses on the run. "What did you do about this confidential report?" "What did he say to that?" "Where did this take place?" "What else did you do?"

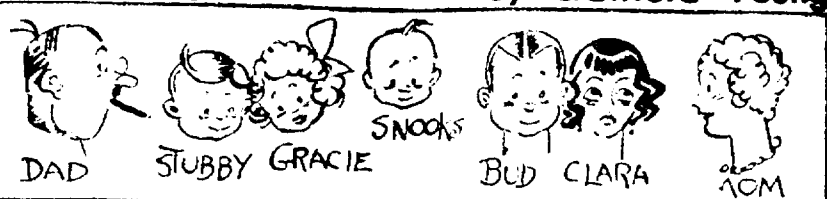

"If he gets a witness who wants to talk and has sense enough to be logical, LaFollette lights a cigarette and lets him tell his story. But if his man is reluctant or evasive, Bob leans forward and barks out, "Come clean now—give us the story!"

Thomas, the ex-professor, is no less persistent. He dwells on the ethics of industry, and is surprised by the confessions. "You say you had a duplicate key made without Mr. Jones's knowledge?" he asks. "Do you think that was right?"

And he insists on accuracy. "You say these men were Communists. Now what do you mean by a Communist?" "Oh, then any man who joins a union is a Communist?"

What Happens If Your Heart is On the Right?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A YOUNG MAN writes me in great alarm and consternation because his heart is on the right side. He wonders what is going to become of him.

Dr. Clendingen

It gives him no trouble. In fact, he did not know that there was anything wrong until it was accidentally discovered during a life insurance examination.

During the draft days in forming an army, when more of the population had a general physical examination than ever before, this condition was found quite regularly. Statistics say that it occurs often in 35,000 times, but it seemed often in that in the army.

Several varieties of this transposition of viscera occur. Sometimes the entire set of organs of the chest and abdomen is turned around—the heart on the right, the liver on the left, the stomach on the right, etc. Sometimes the heart alone is transposed. Sometimes everything BUT the heart is turned around.

The cause is not known. Considering the way the organs rotate during the development of the embryo, it is a wonder it does not occur often.

They all start practically in the midline, and seem to rotate the way they do from habit. It would be just as easy for them to rotate the other way—as they do in such instances as those under discussion. It has been suggested that the person with transposed viscera is one of twins due to a split in the embryo soon after development starts, the other twin failing to develop, but there is no evidence to prove this theory.

Known for Some Time

The possibility of such a condition has been known for a long time. Aristotle described two cases in animals, and I am sure it occurs frequently in dogs. After the days of percussion and the stethoscope began to be reported more often. And when the X-ray came in the number of them was legion.

It is indeed not always easy for a person to make the diagnosis without the X-ray. I have seen a whole class of medical students puzzling over why they didn't hear the heart sounds in the right place, and experienced diagnosticians sometimes take a long time to fall for it.

It doesn't have the slightest effect on health. It does not affect longevity. I have examined one patient over 75 with this developmental condition; he never had a sick day in his life until shortly before this examination.

It is important sometimes for the person who has this to know it. He always should warn any doctor he consults about it beforehand. Maybe the doctor will discover it and maybe not. He is not expecting it and might overlook it. And if, for instance, you have all the symptoms of appendicitis, but on the wrong side of the body, it might prevent confusion to let the doctor know you have a complete transposition of viscera.

One might even have a tattoo notice worked on the chest, in case you are brought into a hospital unconscious, saying, "My heart is in the right."

The DAY THAT I FORGET

CHAPTER 34

JANET hung her wrap off with gay abandon and ran to her husband when he had expressed jealousy upon her return.

"Darling," she asked a little breathlessly, "were you really jealous?"

"Sure I was," he answered obligingly. "What man wants to see his wife flirting with a handsome guy who has everything he hasn't got."

"I wasn't flirting," she said sedately. "And he hasn't got anything you haven't got. He's one of the nicest men I've ever met but that's all. I haven't told you for a long time now but I still think you're the handsomest man in the world—by my standards, not by Hollywood's. I think you're the most lovable person in the world, Mr. Paynter, and I thank you for marrying me."

He tilted her chin up and looked into her eyes with tender mockery. "Did I really make a respectable woman of you, Mrs. Paynter?" he asked.

"Sometimes I think I'm so respectable I'm dull," she said. "Sometimes I think I'm not very interesting to you."

"There never was a girl before you, Janet, who could keep me interested for a week. You've made a swell job of it for three years. I wouldn't be surprised if you were to do it for the rest of my life, if you'll always feel that way about me. You wouldn't doubt that, would you?" Janet's voice was deep with seriousness.

He laughed softly at her concern.

"I mean it, Joel," she persisted. "I mean that I want you always to feel that I . . . well, that you don't need to be jealous of me. I don't suppose you really were. I wouldn't want you to. Jealousy is a horrid poison that does demeaning things to you. It twists your mind into distorted pictures that become so real, you accept them for truth. Then it cuts and twists your heart. It changes everything, transforms one completely."

"Look here," he said, "what do you know about jealousy?" She pleaded the edge of her handkerchief silently. Inside of her she was debating whether or not this was the moment to tell him how she had often felt. And never more strongly than she had this night! Perhaps if she were to tell him what she had done to herself thinking of him with Nina Harley, it might clear up those things between them forever.

On the other hand, it might implant the idea in his head that she was jealous. It would make him wary and uncomfortable and conscious of her possessiveness, the thing that he had most hated in marriage.

"Come on," he urged, "what does Janet know about jealousy?" "Personally, not a thing!" she protested. "But I read, don't I? And I'm a very observant girl, Mr. Paynter."

He was easily satisfied. "Then supposing you observe what hour it is, young woman." He yawned comfortably and got up.

"Hard day tomorrow?" she asked when they had reached her bedroom.

"Beastly. We're doing retakes on the snow scenes. I'll be late for dinner. Probably won't get here at all."

A little later she said, "Joel, I'm having a guest tomorrow."

"Good," he said sleepily. "I'll stay at the studio then and you can take her somewhere to dinner and catch a show."

"It isn't a 'her,'" she said. "It's a man."

"That's Russell Bede. Do you mind?" He asked me if he could call and I thought it was all right. You never seem to mind when Larry or Vernon or Tim drop in and I thought . . .

Russell drank three cups of tea.

Joel hadn't heard a word she said. He was sound asleep.

She fell asleep a few minutes later, thinking that Caroline Maynard's party had probably been as hard on her as it was on her hostess.

She dreamed of an avenging sea monster clutching at a mermaid with slumberous eyes and a tail of shimmering black satin.

Russell Bede said that he'd call around 5. At half-past 4 Janet took her basket out to the garden and cut some fresh flowers. Everything that she did that day made her happy because Joel had made her happy the night before.

Her garden had a freshness to her view. Her house looked cool and sweet. Everything about her reflected her happiness and her ease.

She thought that had Joel not smoothed away her fears the night before, she might have been looking forward to Russell Bede's visit with more embarrassment than pleasure. She was aware that there had been something electric, something more personal in their slight relationship than she had ever felt for any man other than Joel.

She was also aware that she had, in her own words, "led him on." She had picked him out of all the men she knew to treat as though she were a complete person by herself and not a wife.

But now she felt very much like a wife and it protected her. She told cook to ice some small cakes and make lettuce sandwiches.

She was already back of her tea table when Russell Bede arrived.

He looked freshly scrubbed and happily anticipatory when he arrived promptly on the stroke of 5.

"I've been riding around trying to kill the last hour," he said. "You shouldn't have done that. Janet answered easily. "You should have come at once and I would have made you help me gather flowers. I should have put you to work."

"I'd have liked it," he said. "I probably wouldn't have known a weed from a flower but it would have been a good time anyway. I've always wanted a garden but I haven't had time for it."

It was easy then for Janet to get him talking, to get over the first few awkward moments. Now that he was there, she was glad to have him, knew that he was happy to be with her. She realized that it was dangerous and not quite fair but she pushed the thought aside as though it were not there.

He talked to her as he had seldom talked to any other woman. He told her that he did not own a string of stores but that he had a "merchandising interest" in several. He had a large "directorial and buying office," if she knew what he meant.

"Of course, I do," she said at once. "Because before I was married, I was in that business, too."

Then it was he who drew her out. Before she realized she had told him about her job in New York, her early days as a salesgirl and later her promotion to an assistant buyership and her plans and hopes for one day being a full time buyer.

Russell drank three cups of tea and gobbled up sandwiches without having the least idea of what he was doing. This girl was not only attractive and had some sense but she talked his language.

Before they knew it, they were arguing about an idea he had for introducing a new line of furniture and Janet was trying to tell him what was wrong with it.

The clock struck the half hour. Guiltily, he put down his cup. "I must go," he said reluctantly. "It's time you were . . . that is, it's almost dinner time. I've enjoyed it so much I didn't realize time was flying."

Janet was surprised to find that he had been there for over two hours.

"Don't go," she said, "unless you have another engagement. Stay and have dinner with me. Joel will be in a little later. You don't know how much you have re-awakened in me. It's so stimulating to talk about things I used to want to do. Please stay."

"If I do," he answered sitting down again, "I'm liable to offer you a job."

Janet laughed. "My husband doesn't believe in wives having careers," she answered and wondered if perhaps by now Joel had changed his mind.

PROFESSOR DUMBKOFF has a new plan for peace. He believes it will help the automobile industry at the same time.

"Why spend billions for armaments?" asks the well known disseminator of misinformation. "What can possibly cause as many deaths as automobiles? Therefore, if there is a nation we desire to exterminate, which is a polite word for killing off, merely send it a million automobiles."

"With each automobile send a drunken driver—and the enemy nation soon will be exterminated."

"The enemy nation will think it's getting a great bargain when we make a gift to it of the one million high-powered automobiles, and a million men to boot. But wait till it looks the gift horse in the mouth—or, I should say, the hospital."

"Any nation getting strong in a military way can be decimated in a year by a million reckless American auto drivers. To make this more sure, send along a million gallons of whisky with the drivers."

ARTISTS URGED TO PAINT MORE IN OWN YARDS

STILLWATER, Okla. (UP) — All hopeful artists should take a tip from the old masters and "paint their own backyards," according to Doel Reed, professor of art at the Oklahoma A. and M. College.

Reed, recognized as one of the Southwest's outstanding artists, believes a sincere artist presents his times and settings as they appear in everyday life. He opposes the bizarre or mysterious in painting.

"Manet, Cezanne, El Greco, Titian and Giotto all painted their daily surroundings, interpreting them through their own reactions," Reed asserts. "Consequently, their works have live on, while the pretty parlor pieces of their contemporaries have been forgotten."

Reed recently won sweepstakes in an art exhibition by Thomas Craven, nationally known art critic. His entry was the "Highway," depicting a road near Stillwater.

The artist's "Oklahoma Barn" recently was shown as the sole representative of Oklahoma in an international exhibit in Chicago and at the American Etchers annual exhibition in New York.

MONEY FOR PLAY

WHEN the people have money for play that must necessarily mean that money is easier to get than it was not so long ago. It follows, too, that being easier to get many find it easier to let it go.

That at least seems to be a fair conclusion to draw from reports that business at the country's winter resorts was very much better this winter than for several years. Of course, it may be assumed that the weather has had something to do with drawing crowds to these play spots. But it is also reasonable to believe that the playing crowds are another proof of improving business conditions—one of the reasons why we should all be increasingly cheerful. Concessionaires declare that people seem to be in a more carefree mood, that dollar bills instead of small silver are increasingly in evidence.

There are wise old birds among the gentry which deals with the people in their periods of play. They can read signs that are unseen by most of us. That doubtless is why they stress the appearance of dollar bills in place of small silver.

FREE PRESS UPHELD

MEMBERS of the lower house of the Tennessee Legislature deserve credit for killing the "gag law" that was designed to intimidate the State's newspaper editors and publishers. The bill was decidedly un-American, since it constituted a deliberate assault on the principle of freedom of the press.

It is a matter of nationwide interest for a State lawmaking body thus to take a strong stand in opposition to the attempt of political interests to gag the press and thereby avert the possibility of vigorous criticism.

Fortunately, the United States Supreme Court has never failed to declare unconstitutional such restrictive measures as have come before it for consideration.

But it is even better for that kind of vicious legislation to be killed at the source, for that is the best possible evidence of popular interest in the untrammelled publication of news and comment.

F. D. PILING MESSAGES ON CONGRESS

WASHINGTON — Judging from the amount of homework the President has dumped into the lap of Congress, the solons will be sweltering under the Capitol dome well through the summer.

Since January 5, when Congress convened, Roosevelt has sent eight separate messages to Capitol Hill—and there are more in the offing. Plus routine supply bills, any one of these during normal times would be enough to engage Congress for a considerable period.

Here is a tabulation of the fodder he has shoved down the congressional maw so far:

January 6—Annual message on the state of the Union.

January 12—Message on government reorganization.

February 1—Message asking legislation to authorize acceptance of the Mellon art gift.

February 3—Report of the National Resources Committee on flood control.

February 10—Report of the Great Plains Committee on drought remedies.

February 16—Message on farm tenancy.

February 18—Message asking for crop insurance program.

Except for work given the special session of Congress called immediately after Roosevelt's inauguration in 1933, this is a record list. Usually Roosevelt gives Congress time partially to clear the decks before sending it new proposals.

But this time it was wise strategy for him to emphasize the amount of important legislation awaiting some change in the Supreme Court before it can be made effective. So Roosevelt has crammed the legislative hopper full in a little over one month.

SENATE VARIETY SHOW

One of the most important parts of the Senate investigation into Pinkerton detective labor spying is the technique of the two Senators who draw it out of them.

LaFollete of Wisconsin and Thomas of Utah, the impresarios of this Senate drama, are as unlike as Mutt and Jeff. Bob LaFollette is young, incisive, relentless. He stares at a witness with impassive gaze, beats him down with trip-hammer questioning.

Elbert Thomas, who had been a Utah college professor for 20 years before he came to the Senate, looks like a friendly old country doctor. He puts a question in grave, kindly tones, as if he were saying, "How long have you had this fever, Mr. Pinkerton?"

LaFollette keeps his witnesses on the run. "What did you do about this confidential report?" . . . "What did he say to that?" . . . "Where did this take place?" . . . "What else did you do?"

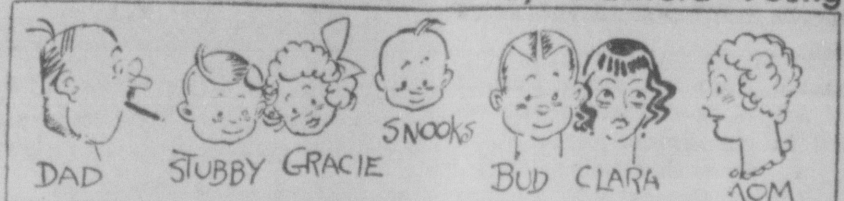

"If he gets a witness who wants to talk and has sense enough to be logical, LaFollette lights a cigarette and lets him tell his story. But if his man is reluctant or evasive, Bob leans forward and barks out, "Come clean now—give us the story!"

Thomas, the ex-professor, is no less persistent. He dwells on the ethics of industry, and is surprised by the confessions. "You say you had a duplicate key made without Mr. Jones's knowledge?" he asks. "Do you think that was right?"

And he insists on accuracy. "You say these men were Communists. Now what do you mean by a Communist?" . . . "Oh, then any man who joins a union is a Communist?"

What Happens If Your Heart is On the Right?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A YOUNG MAN writes me in a great alarm and consternation because his heart is on the right side. He wonders what is going to become of him. It gives him no trouble. In fact, he did not know that there was anything wrong until it was accidentally discovered during a life insurance examination.

During the draft days in forming an army, when more of the population had a general physical examination than ever before, this condition was found quite regularly. Statistics say that it occurs once in 35,000 times, but it seemed oftener than that in the army.

Several varieties of this transposition of viscera occur. Sometimes the entire set of organs of the chest and abdomen is turned around—the heart on the right, the liver on the left, the stomach on the right, etc. Sometimes the heart alone is transposed. "It's Russell Bede. Do you mind? He asked me if he could call and I thought it was all right. You never seem to mind when Larry or Vernon or Tim drop in."

It was easy then for Janet to get

Russell drank three cups of tea.

and I thought . . .

Joel hadn't heard a word she said. He was sound asleep.

She fell asleep a few minutes later thinking that Caroline Maynard's party had probably been as hard on her as it was on her hosts.

She dreamed of an avenging sea monster clutching at a mermaid with slumberous eyes and a tail of shimmering black satin.

Russell Bede said that he'd call around 5. At half-past 4 Janet took her basket out to the garden and cut some fresh flowers. Everything that she did that day made her happy because Joel had made her happy the night before.

Her garden had a freshness to her view. Her house looked cool and sweet. Everything about her reflected her happiness and her ease.

She thought that had Joel not smoothed away her fears the night before, she might have been looking forward to Russell Bede's visit with more embarrassment than pleasure. She was aware that there had been something electric, something more personal in their slight relationship than she had ever felt for any man other than Joel.

She was also aware that she had, in her own words, "led him on." She had picked him out of all the men she knew to treat as though she were a complete person by herself and not a wife.

But now she felt very much like a wife and it protected her. She told cook to ice some small cakes and make lettuce sandwiches.

She was already back of her tea table when Russell Bede arrived.

He looked freshly scrubbed and happily anticipatory when he arrived promptly on the stroke of 5.

"I've been riding around trying to kill the last hour," he said.

"You shouldn't have done that," Janet answered easily. "You should have come at once and I would have made you help me gather flowers. I should have put you to work."

"I'd have liked it," he said. "I probably wouldn't have known a weed from a flower but it would have been a good time anyway. I've always wanted a garden but I haven't had time for it."

It was easy then for Janet to get him talking, to get over the first few awkward moments. Now that he was there, she was glad to have him, knew that he was happy to be with her. She realized that it was dangerous and not quite fair but she pushed the thought aside as though it were not there.

He talked to her as he had seldom talked to any other woman. He told her that he did not own a string of stores but that he had "a merchandising interest" in several. He had a large "directorial and buying office," if she knew what he meant.

"Of course, I do," she said at once. "Because before I was married, I was in that business, too."

Then it was he who drew her out. Before she realized she had told him about her job in New York, her early days as a salesgirl and later her promotion to an assistant buyership and her plans and hopes for one day being a full time buyer.

Russell drank three cups of tea and gobbled up sandwiches without having the least idea of what he was doing. This girl was not only attractive and had some sense but she talked his language.

Before they knew it, they were arguing about an idea he had for introducing a new line of furniture and Janet was trying to tell him what was wrong with it.

The clock struck the half hour. Guiltily, he put down his cup. "I must go," he said reluctantly.

"It's time you were . . . that is, it's almost dinner time. I've enjoyed it so much I didn't realize time was flying."

Janet was surprised to find that he had been there for over two hours.

"Don't go," she said, "unless you have another engagement. Stay and have dinner with me. Joel will be in a little later. You don't know how much you have awakened in me. It's so stimulating to talk about things I used to want to do. Please stay."

"If I do," he answered sitting down again, "I'm liable to offer you a job."

Janet laughed. "My husband doesn't believe in wives having careers," she answered and wondered if perhaps by now Joel had changed his mind.

You're Telling Me!

PROFESSOR DUMBKOFF has a new plan for peace. He believes it will help the automobile industry at the same time.

"Why spend billions for armaments?" asks the well known disseminator of misinformation. "What can possibly cause as many deaths as automobiles? Therefore, if there is a nation we desire to exterminate, which is a polite word for killing off, merely send it a million automobiles."

"With each automobile send a drunken driver—and the enemy nation soon will be exterminated."

"The enemy nation will think it's getting a great bargain when we make a gift to it of the one million high-powered automobiles, and a million men to boot. But wait till it looks the gift horse in the mouth—or, I should say, the hospital."

"Any nation getting strong in a military way can be decimated in a year by a million reckless American auto drivers. To make this more sure, send along a million gallons of whiskey with the drivers."

"In fact, unless the United States adopts such a plan, it is likely to suffer self-defeat through the destruction of its entire population. If Spain had been a really modern country like ourselves, there would have been

OBLIGING PLAYER?

Mr. Smith: Darling, do you realize that you have asked me what's trumps at least a dozen times tonight?

Mrs. Smith: Well, dearest, I did not really have to ask. I did it merely to show that I was taking an interest in the game.

ARTISTS URGED TO PAINT MORE IN OWN YARDS

STILLWATER, Okla. (UP) — All hopeful artists should take a tip from the old masters and "paint their own backyards," according to Doel Reed, professor of art at the Oklahoma A. and M. College.

Reed, recognized as one of the Southwest's outstanding artists, believes a sincere artist presents his times and settings as they appear in everyday life. He opposes the bizarre or mysterious in painting.

"Manet, Cezanne, El Greco, Titian and Giotto all painted their daily surroundings, interpreting them through their own reactions

MRS. Marguerite Daly of 1009 W. Marion St., Mishawaka, Ind., said: "At one time years ago, during expectancy, I was losing strength. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription taken as a tonic during that period gave me an appetite, and greater strength. After my baby came I found the 'Prescription' a remarkable tonic. It stimulated my appetite and helped to build me up." Buy of your druggist.

LET'S HAVE A PARTY!

Fine! Whom shall we ask?

Well, we want the Harrisons, of course. And the Johnsons. And the Coopers and the Wallaces.

Say, they'll be fun together. What'll we have for dinner?

Oh, let's make it something different this time. Not just the same old things all over again.

I know! We can get a lot of new ideas looking through the advertisements in this paper. Here's a suggestion to start with right here . . .

The advertisements are your guide to modern living. They bring you today's news about the food you eat and the clothes you wear, the stores you visit and the home you live in. Factories are busy everywhere turning out new and interesting products for you . . . trimming costs to meet your budget.

And the place to find out about these new things is right here in this newspaper. Every day its columns are filled with important messages which you should read. Whether you're planning a party or remodeling a room you should follow the advertisements . . . to learn what's new . . . and cheaper . . . and better.

Today's Recipes

RICE OMELET—Three eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, two table-spoons butter, one cup boiled rice, one cup milk. Warm milk in double boiler. Add rice and half the butter. Stir and beat until well blended. Add well-beaten eggs and the seasoning. Melt rest of butter in omelet pan. When hot, turn in rice mixture and let brown for one minute. Put in oven to set about 20 minutes to half an hour at 370 degrees.

One danger following flood conditions in a farm region is that wet haymows may catch fire from spontaneous combustion.

LET'S HAVE A PARTY!
Fine! Whom shall we ask?
Well, we want the Harrisons, of course. And the Johnsons. And the Coopers and the Wallaces.
Say, they'll be fun together. What'll we have for dinner?
Oh, let's make it something different this time. Not just the same old things all over again.
I know! We can get a lot of new ideas looking through the advertisements in this paper. Here's a suggestion to start with right here . . .
The advertisements are your guide to modern living. They bring you today's news about the food you eat and the clothes you wear, the stores you visit and the home you live in. Factories are busy everywhere turning out new and interesting products for you . . . trimming costs to meet your budget.
And the place to find out about these new things is right here in this newspaper. Every day its columns are filled with important messages which you should read. Whether you're planning a party or remodeling a room you should follow the advertisements . . . to learn what's new . . . and cheaper . . . and better.

PICKAWAY BOYS AND GIRLS WIN COUNTY BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIPS.

NEW HOLLAND, ASHVILLE TEAMS BEATEN IN FINALS BY SPEEDY AND DETERMINED PIRATE CAGERS

Al Kauber's Harrison Township Boys Gain Third Place by Rallying in Last Period to Edge Scioto Quintet in 26-24 Fray

Pickaway township's teams ruled the Pickaway county basketball world today after the boys defeated New Holland and the girls turned back Ashville in Saturday night's tournament finals played in the Circleville Athletic Club gymnasium. Carl Burger coaches both teams.

Ashville won the consolation contest from Scioto township to gain the third position in the district class B tournament to be played in Westerville next week-end.

About This And That In Many Sports

Tigers Enter Tourney

Contrary to reports, Circleville high school cagers, despite their unsuccessful season, will enter the district class A tournament to be held in Delaware — Marion Harding will be met next Friday at 9 p. m. — Practice sessions resume tonight.

Pairings Tonight

Pairings will be made this evening for the class B tournament, which will be held in Westerville — Pickaway, New Holland and Ashville will participate — Laurelville won the Hocking county tournament by defeating Gibsonsburg in a Saturday night game.

Fund Should Be Big

The Pickaway county tournament will show a neat profit when all accounts have been figured, school authorities believe — The tournament made all expenses in the first session — Everything taken it at the gate the following Saturday, then Thursday, Friday and Saturday went into the fund to be divided between the schools and the state athletic association, headed by H. R. Townsend — the schools use this money for new equipment and to help finance the track meet in the spring.

Anderson Wins $1

Creighton Anderson, who forwarded for the Pickaways, won $1 through his basketball ability — Andy was fined one sinoleen last summer by Mayor Harry Margulis of Ashville for cutting a corner in the village — After the last game Saturday the mayor went into the Pickaway dressing room to inform the Pirate ace he could have the dollar back if he would call for it.

Many Veterans Return

Several of the teams will be mighty powerful next year — Pickaway has Anderson, J. Warner, Dunkle, Graves, Wilson, Boggs and some more returning; Ashville has Gray, Walden, J. Gregg, Reid and others; New Holland will have Ebert, Mossbarger, Davis, Ebert, John Louis, etc.; Scioto's forwards will be Rodgers and V. Beavers, the center will be Earl Wilson, and the guards probably Reichelderfer and H. Wilson — Williamsport will be tough and so will Jackson — It looks like a big year.

BACK TO ZANESVILLE

SPRINGFIELD, Mar. 1 — (UP) — The formal re-entry of Zanesville in the Mid-Atlantic baseball league had been approved here today following a vote of the circuit's directors.

OHIO UNIVERSITY AND MUSKINGUM TEAMS ON SPOT

COLUMBUS, Mar. 1 — (UP) —

Ohio University and Muskingum college, favored since early December to grab the Buckeye and Ohio conference basketball championships, today went "on the spot" as the collegiate court campaign in the state started its final week.

Ohio U's excellent combine faltered for the first time in league play Saturday when it dropped a 36 to 33 decision to Marshall college.

By its defeat the Bobcat quintet lost a glorious opportunity of compiling the greatest record for conference play in the Buckeye's 12 year history.

Only once since the league's formation has a quintet ever gone through a schedule without a defeat at the hands of a conference foe. Ohio Wesleyan accomplished the feat two seasons ago when only eight games were played.

JOHNS HOPKINS ENDS CHARGES FOR ALL GAMES

BALTIMORE, Md., March 1 — (UP) — Johns Hopkins University, moving to divorce its athletic program from any taint of commercialism, decided today to abolish all admission charges to university sporting events.

This latest blow at athletic subsidies will become effective next fall when free admission cards will be issued to students, alumni, and to the public — if there are any left over.

"The university has placed athletics at the level which they would occupy if, in the realm of collegiate sports, there were no such things as a recruited football team and no gold mine of gate receipts to be tapped," officials said.

CAGE SCORES

Minnesota 30, Wisconsin 17
Northwestern 34, Chicago 29
Purdue 69, Indiana 45

through the hoop for six points in this session, while Walden hit for four and W. Gregg and Gray for three each.

The second period saw Scioto pull a little closer to end the half 12-16. Scioto pulled ahead in the third quarter to start the last with a 22-20 advantage. Two free throws by W. Gregg and buckets by J. Gregg and Reid gave Ashville 26 while Scioto could reach only 24 on M. Williams' bucket.

Although the outcome of the final contest was made certain by Pickaway's great drive in the second quarter bedlam broke loose when the last gun was sounded. It required several minutes before the crowd quieted long enough for the trophies to be awarded.

Four Teams Beaten

Pickaway won from Monroe, Muhlenberg, Scioto and New Holland to gain its title, while the girls defeated Scioto and Ashville. All the games were refereed by Kroger Babb, of Wilmington. Proceeds of the tournament will be divided among various contestants.

ROSEMONT, ANITA WINNER, TO RUN AGAIN IN 1938

LOS ANGELES, March 1 — (UP) — Rosemont, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap Saturday, will be back next year to defend the title. Trainer Dick Handlen of the Foxcatcher farms said today.

The big bay came out of the gruelling handicap a trifle sore, and will not be entered in the $100,000 San Juan Capistrano handicap which closes the Santa Anita meeting next Saturday. He will get a long rest, but probably will start in the $20,000 Brooklyn handicap at Belmont park in mid-summer, Handlen said.

FAST CONTESTS TO CLOSE BIG TEN CAGE RACE

Minnesota and Michigan Vie For Tie With Illinois; Young Seeks Record

CHICAGO, March 1 — (UP) —

Minnesota and Michigan, two surprising outsiders in the Big Ten basketball campaign, hammer at Illinois' half-game lead tonight with all their hopes for a share of the title at stake.

While the stubborn conference leaders are idle, Minnesota will shoot for a first place tie against Northwestern in the final home game of its greatest season in 18 years and Michigan battles at Indiana.

The hullabaloo on three campuses over the prospect of a title almost drowned out Purdue's appearance at Wisconsin, where Boilermaker Jewell Young probably will set a new individual scoring record. The southpaw marksman already has 165 points, within five of the mark rolled up by Joe Reiff of Northwestern.

All three challengers breezed through Saturday night foes. Illinois whipped Iowa, 40 to 29, Michigan came from behind and beat Ohio State, 38 to 24, and Minnesota took its time about defeating Wisconsin, 30 to 17.

One burst of speed in the last four minutes took all the fight out of Iowa after a game against the Illinois. Louie Boudreau, sophomore star of the league leaders, flipped in two field goals and engineered three others before the Hawkeyes recovered their poise.

BUCKEYES DRAW RECORD CROWDS IN COURT YEAR

COLUMBUS, Mar. 1 — (UP) —

Ohio State Athletic officials today gleamed satisfaction from the "box office appeal of the Buck basketball team, but could find little else to cheer about following a crushing 38 to 24 setback at the hands of the University of Michigan.

The Bucks played seven games at home this season and drew a total of 56,232 fans, an average of 8,033 per contest.

With the exception of Denison, all home games were with Western conference foes. The Big Ten teams drew 59,164 fans, the greatest number to see league teams in action here since 1925 when the six game conference attendance was 53,006.

Because of the prolonged Western trip taken by the Ohio team during the holidays, the Bucks played fewer home contests this season than usual but only once in history has the attendance record ever been surpassed.

A year ago when 10 games were played here the Bucks drew 57,995 fans for an all-time record. The "draw" last year broke a record which was established during the 1922-23 season when Howard Mattison, Lew Hinchman, Bill Hosket, Bobby Colburn and Bill Bolter teamed to give Ohio a share in the Big Ten title with Northwestern.

Total attendance that year for nine home games was 49,199. The Minnesota contest was the greatest drawing card of the last Buck season. A total of 9,303 fans witnessed the Gophers in action.

Game-by-game attendance of the other contests follow: Denison, 6,068; Wisconsin, 7,502; Chicago, 7,809; Indiana, 9,257; Northwestern, 7,586 and Michigan, 8,307.

of the Pirate pitchers last year?

THE ANSWERS

1. Waite Hoyt, Aug. 9, 1899, and Pie Traynor, Nov. 11, 1899.
2. Paul is a heavier hitter than Lloyd by about 25 percentage points. Paul is three years older than Lloyd.
3. Red Lucas, who won 15 games and lost four.

Champions Place Three On All-Tourney Team

Three members of the championship Pickaway township boys' team and one each from Ashville and Scioto win places on The Daily Herald's all-tournament team, picked in conjunction with Referee Kroger Babb.

OHIO UNIVERSITY AND MUSKINGUM TEAMS ON SPOT

COLUMBUS, Mar. 1 — (UP) — Ohio University and Muskingum college, favored since early December to grab the Buckeye and Ohio conference basketball championships, today went "on the spot" as the collegiate court campaign in the state started its final week.

Ohio U's excellent combine faltered for the first time in league play Saturday when it dropped a 36 to 33 decision to Marshall college.

By its defeat the Bobcat quintet lost a glorious opportunity of compiling the greatest record for conference play in the Buckeye's 12 year history.

Only once since the league's formation has a quintet ever gone through a schedule without a defeat at the hands of a conference foe. Ohio Wesleyan accomplished the feat two seasons ago when only eight games were played.

JOHNS HOPKINS ENDS CHARGES FOR ALL GAMES

BALTIMORE, Md., March 1 — (UP) — Johns Hopkins University, moving to divorce its athletic program from any taint of commercialism, decided today to abolish all admission charges to university sporting events.

This latest blow at athletic subsidies will become effective next fall when free admission cards will be issued to students, alumni, and to the public — if there are any left over.

"The university has placed athletics at the level which they would occupy if, in the realm of collegiate sports, there were no such things as a recruited football team and no gold mine of gate receipts to be tapped," officials said.

FAST CONTESTS TO CLOSE BIG TEN CAGE RACE

Minnesota and Michigan Vie For Tie With Illinois; Young Seeks Record

CHICAGO, March 1 — (UP) — Minnesota and Michigan, two surprising outsiders in the Big Ten basketball campaign, hammer at Illinois' half-game lead tonight with all their hopes for a share of the title at stake.

While the stubborn conference leaders are idle, Minnesota will shoot for a first place tie against Northwestern in the final home game of its greatest season in 18 years and Michigan battles at Indiana.

The hullabaloo on three campuses over the prospect of a title almost drowned out Purdue's appearance at Wisconsin, where Boilermaker Jewell Young probably will set a new individual scoring record. The southpaw marksman already has 163 points, within five of the mark rolled up by Joe Reiff of Northwestern.

All three challengers breezed through Saturday night foes. Illinois whipped Iowa, 40 to 29, Michigan came from behind and beat Ohio State, 38 to 24, and Minnesota took its time about defeating Wisconsin, 30 to 17.

One burst of speed in the last four minutes took all the fight out of Iowa after a game against the Illini. Louie Boudreau, sophomore star of the league leaders, flipped in two field goals and engineered three others before the Hawkeyes recovered their poise.

BUCKEYES DRAW RECORD CROWDS IN COURT YEAR

COLUMBUS, Mar. 1 — (UP) — Ohio State Athletic officials today gleamed satisfaction from the "box office appeal of the Buck basketball team, but could find little else to cheer about following a crushing 38 to 24 setback at the hands of the University of Michigan.

The Bucks played seven games at home this season and drew a total of 56,223 fans, an average of 8,033 per contest.

With the exception of Denison, all home games were with Western conference foes. The Big Ten teams drew 50,164 fans, the greatest number to see league teams in action here since 1925 when the six game conference attendance was 53,006.

Because of the prolonged Western trip taken by the Ohio team during the holidays, the Bucks played fewer home contests this season than usual but only once in history has the attendance record ever been surpassed.

A year ago when 10 games were played here the Bucks drew 57,995 fans for an all-time record.

The "draw" last year broke a record which was established during the 1932-33 season when Howard Mattison, Lew Hinchman, Bill Hosket, Bobby Colburn and Bill Beiter teamed to give Ohio a share in the Big Ten title with Northwestern.

Total attendance that year for nine home games was 49,199.

The Minnesota contest was the greatest drawing card of the last Buck season. A total of 9,303 fans witnessed the Gophers in action.

Game-by-game attendance of the other contests follow: Denison, 6,068; Wisconsin, 7,902; Chicago, 7,809; Indiana, 9,257; Northwestern, 7,586 and Michigan, 8,307.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

AVOID BIDDING TO SCORE

NOWADAYS few players bid to the score. That is, just because a bid of 2-Diamonds will yield game, or game and rubber, the modern bidder does not use an opening bid of two. He disregards the score when he makes an opening bid of two, using that as game promised and slam hoped, at some call fitting the joint 26 cards of his side. West's obsolete bidding on the hand he held proved very expensive.

North and South were notoriously timid bidders, so when West made an opening call of 2-Diamonds, and North had passed, East did not like to increase the contract, by attempting to show either of his major suits, so he passed also. South had to pass.

The opening lead was the 5 of spades. West took the trick with his Ace. There followed three leads of diamonds. Finding that he had to lose a trump trick, West spread his cards, claiming a small slam. Aside from the diamond trick which he must lose, West held 14 cold tricks: 3 in spades, 4 in hearts, 4 in diamonds and 3 in clubs. His poor bidding had cost him plenty.

Against any defense East and West could have made a grand slam at no trumps, with 150 honors scored, plus a bonus of 1,000 points for a grand slam bid when not vulnerable. There was a spread of 3 tricks in spades, 4 tricks in hearts, 3 tricks in diamonds and 3 tricks in clubs.

There also was a grand slam at hearts, but that would not have scored as much as the grand slam at no trumps.

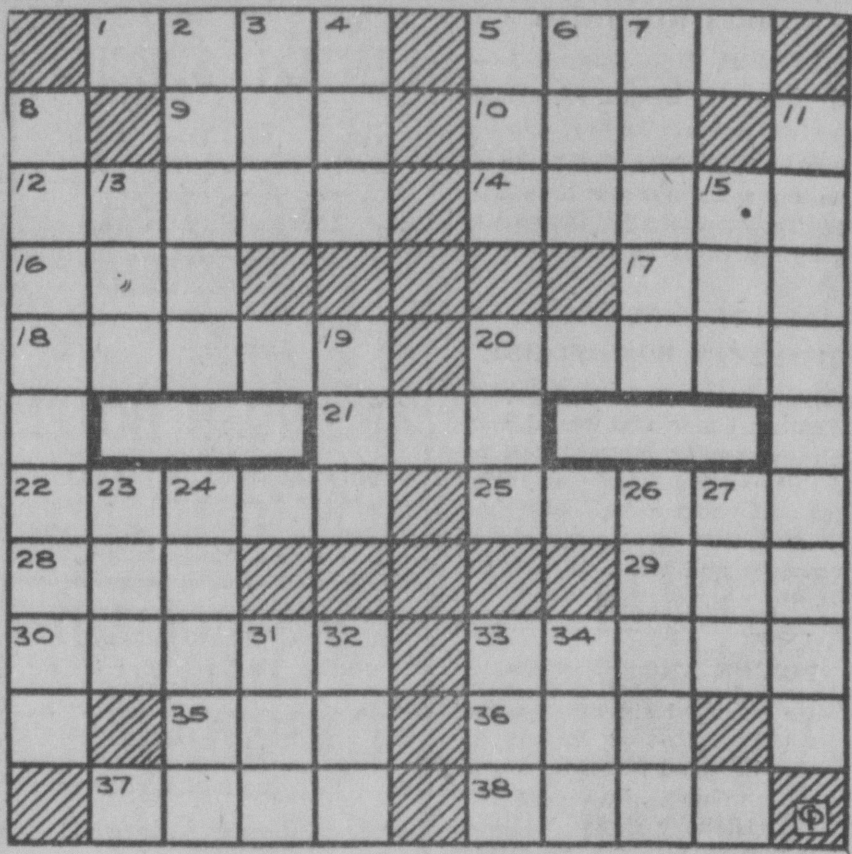

Every sort of opening conventional bid at times possesses a marked advantage. A few players use an opening bid of two, to announce possession of 5½ quick tricks. West held that unusual number: 1 in spades, 1½ in hearts, 2 diamonds and 1 in clubs. Had a follower of that convention made an opening bid of 2-Diamonds on West's cards, his partner could have read precisely the Aces, K's and A-Q's held by West. East could have read solid tops in all four suits and at once have jumped into 7-No Trumps.

Conservative bidders could have hardly failed to reach a small slam, at either no trumps or hearts, no matter what system of bidding they followed. Many players absolutely refuse to bid a grand slam when partner makes an opening call of only one. That bidding to score is a dreadful point loser. I thought that it had been abandoned, long ago.

BARN, OUTBUILDINGS AND GARAGE IN TARTLTON DESTROYED BY FLAMES

HOUSE OF FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT UNDETERMINED

Properties of Rev. Elsea and Mrs. Clara Mackling Scene of Blaze Damage

WIND ADDS TO DAMAGE

Extent of Loss in Village Unknown by Owners

A large barn on the property in Tartlton rented by the Rev. S. C. Elsea, adjoining outbuildings and a garage owned by Mrs. Clara Mackling, Tartlton, were destroyed by fire Saturday night.

The cause of the blaze is undetermined. It started in the barn, residents said, and a strong breeze fanned the flames to the nearby buildings.

Mrs. Mackling's garage building was across the alley from the barn. A car in the garage was removed but the fire consumed the household goods of Mr. and Mrs. George Karshner, of Tartlton, stored in the building.

The barn contained a considerable amount of hay, fodder and farming equipment.

Residents said the fire started about 7:30 p. m. and because of the heavy wind had made no attempt was made to call fire fighting equipment from nearby cities. The property is owned by a Mrs. Poling who resides in Laurelvile.

No estimate of the damage was given.

The wind prevented the fire from spreading to the Elsea home.

of the sum still remained to be worked out here, inasmuch as it might include an amount to cover the duke's large debts if creditors agreed to take long term payments. Otherwise, it was said, an amount would be provided to cover the debts and the capital fund would be correspondingly smaller.

In addition the duke would receive an allowance, to be paid quarterly. The latest sum mentioned is $150,000 a year.

King George must approve any basis of settlement before there can be a final agreement, it was said.

Brief Items of Interest to Pickaway Farmers

The Guernsey county agricultural planning committee reported in 1936, "In the light of recent floods, it is not difficult to imagine southeastern Ohio as a miniature 'China' in future years."

Pike county owners of river bottom land say that soil deposits by spring floods on their farms become poorer in quality each year because there is so little good soil left for water to carry down from the uplands.

Monroe county farmers in inventing the agriculture of the county decided that an acre of woodlot produced pasture worth only $1.02 an acre but, if protected, the trees would produce forest products worth $4 to $5 an acre each year.

BARN, OUTBUILDINGS AND GARAGE IN TARLTON DESTROYED BY FLAMES

CAUSE OF FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT UNDETERMINED

Properties of Rev. Elsea and Mrs. Clara Mackling Scene of Blaze Damage

WIND ADDS TO DAMAGE

Extent of Loss in Village Unknown by Owners

A large barn on the property in Tarlton rented by the Rev. S. C. Elsea, adjoining outbuildings and a garage owned by Mrs. Clara Mackling, Tarlton, were destroyed by fire Saturday night.

The cause of the blaze is undetermined. It started in the barn, residents said, and a strong breeze fanned the flames to the nearby buildings.

Mrs. Mackling's garage building was across the alley from the barn. A car in the garage was removed but the fire consumed the household goods of Mr. and Mrs. George Karshner, of Tarlton, stored in the building.

The barn contained a considerable amount of hay, fodder and farming equipment.

Residents said the fire started about 7:30 p. m. and because of the headwind it had made no attempt was made to call fire fighting equipment from nearby cities. The property is owned by a Mrs. Poling who resides in Laurelville.

No estimate of the damage was given.

The wind prevented the fire from spreading to the Elsea home.

of the sum still remained to be worked out here, inasmuch as it might include an amount to cover the duke's large debts if creditors agreed to take long term payments. Otherwise, it was said, an amount would be provided to cover the debts and the capital fund would be correspondingly smaller.

In addition the duke would receive an allowance, to be paid quarterly. The latest sum mentioned is $150,000 a year.

King George must approve any basis of settlement before there can be a final agreement, it was said.

Reports to the United States Department of Agriculture from potato sections the first of January indicated that potato acreage would increase around 12 per cent this year. High prices for the 1936 crop have stimulated interest in production.

Sheep were the only farm animals present in larger numbers on farms of the United States on January 1, 1937, than were present a year previously. Beef cattle, horses, mules, dairy cows, and hogs all declined in numbers during the period. There were 1.1 per cent more sheep than on January 1, 1936.

"The primary purpose of the national poultry improvement plan is to identify authoritatively poultry breeding stock, hatching eggs, and chicks with respect to quality by describing them in terms uniformly accepted in all parts of the country. Protection is thereby afforded producers from unscrupulous competition, and purchasers are enabled to buy with confidence."

Her hero eats BREAD

YOUR children, who are in school today, will be Ohio's leaders tomorrow. Now is the time to help them build for the future.

Boys and girls who want to be leaders in school should eat plenty of bread. A 4 o'clock lunch helps—bread and milk, bread and meat, bread and cheese, or just plain bread and butter. Bread helps to build up energy for school work and play.

Bread is our outstanding energy food. It sustains youth and old age. Serve bread and other baked wheat foods at every meal.
